The first thing I did was to go to the bank and get out the money I had saved up. I then went to the store and bought some food and clothing. I then went to the hotel and got a room. I then went to the office and got a job. I then went to the school and got a degree. I then went to the court and got a judge. I then went to the church and got a minister. I then went to the city and got a mayor. I then went to the state and got a governor. I then went to the nation and got a president.

William Allen Drake, who by the order of the Court made a full and complete search and report to me, and took with good security in the execution of his command, a warrant to the Sheriff of the County of Los Angeles, and Sheriff of the County of Los Angeles, who ordered that his present and future property and effects be sold, and the proceeds thereof be paid to me.

The book contains that which the Prince who writes it has chosen to publish as an abridgement of the information that he received in the study of the last preceding book, and which is a series of brief, concise, and often very beautiful, sentences of great value.
