

County, be sent for a support including all such bastard children whose reputed fathers cannot be compelled to support them (and of the mother will not part with her child nor support it herself, let her go to the poor house and labour for the benefit of the institution, until the child shall be of sufficient age to be bound out) excepting only such, who or whose friends for them, shall agree to take an amount to be given them in stipulated articles of provisions and clothing as the Overseers of the Poor shall think would not exceed the rate at which such person might be supported at the poor house. And in this exception let none be included but those whose peculiar situation absolutely requires such a course: and in every such case let the Overseers of the poor demand and receive sufficient assurance that the person so provided for shall be supported that year without any further allowance or expence to the County, and more effectually to guard against impositions in this respect let a committee of 5 (a majority of whom shall be a quorum for business) be selected of the most intelligent and discreet men, that can be both aimed near the poor house as possible, whose duty it shall be to visit the institution over in three months or often if need be, to examine the State of the poor, with all the economy and management pursued by the Steward, to instruct him in the line of his duty, to decide upon all questions of doubt relative to the admittance of such as may claim the benefit of the establishment, and what may or may not be provided for, amongst their friends, under the foregoing exceptions. And let it be the duty of this committee to report to the County Court once in six months, or often if need be, the general State of the institution, stating particularly, the number, names and conditions of the paupers, as well those resident at the poor house as such as shall be provided for in any other way, and the reason for such exception. They shall moreover suggest to the Court in every such report any defects in the plan or management of the institution, and point out such additions, alterations or improvements as they shall think would be beneficial. It shall be the duty of the Steward to receive into his care all such persons as shall be sent to the poor house by order of the Overseers of the poor or by a majority of three in any one district; to register in a book to be kept for that purpose, their names, sexes, ages, their particular infirmities, under whose order, and the time of their arrival, when discharged, and for what cause: which book as well as all others to be kept by him in the management of his Office shall at all times be open to the inspection of any one or more of the Overseers of the Poor, or any member of the Court, or of a Committee appointed by either to visit the institution. He shall parcel their clothes off into separate packages as in his discretion he shall think will be best adapted to their circumstances, so as to insure peace, harmony and mutual assistance to each other and change them as experience may prove necessary from time to time, and to assign to each such its particular residence, and to each person his other particular duty, as they may be able and he shall think proper. It shall be his duty to furnish them out of the surplus in his hands with the quantity and quality of provisions, clothing, bedding &c which their several causes may seem to require, and shall pay strict attention to the use they make of them so as to guard against waste. - And it shall be his duty to visit each house every their concerns, to see that against disorder, and to He shall cause to be cul-vegetables, as well for the his care, and he should also which let him have the an-moreover be furnished with poor by the Overseers of the

for the poor, taking care ner of need be appoint examine the Stewards book Such of the paupers as and for that purpose
The Steward should house, and especially ag-every means in his power the paupers, and in or-rations of the offenders, or most effectual.
Not as the present Law and as the present State things to be done, with a against impositions, and Have Resolved 1st & effect so much of the necessary houses, and in
in two annual instalments Dr. That it be recommend Assembly, to see that meet the views of the fordorse. And Dr. That it be respectful houses are provided to ad-Law shall warrant, and to the object until the Law Can Bowers, Ed. Maff
And it is ordered that John Stone, Weymouth

824
pages
4