

award of said party, of the second part therein, as the said party of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.

Witness

the King's attorney &c.

Dunkinburg, Va. In the black office, September 24th 1792.

That I, John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792, the award of said party, of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.

Witness the King's attorney &c.

That I, John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792, the award of said party, of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.

Ex. V. 1792
1792

John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c.

Virginia, County of Southampton, to wit:

That I, John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792, the award of said party, of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.

John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c.

Virginia, County of Southampton, to wit:

That I, John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792, the award of said party, of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.

John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c.

Dunkinburg, Va. In the black office, October 24th 1792.

That I, John B. Morgan, of said place, the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792, the award of said party, of the first part doth consent and agree with the second party that which with the first party claims to be his and that the first party claims to be the benefit and of the premises also granted in full and absolute and that he will execute and sign the same granted premises in full and absolute possession of the party of the second part formerly the King's attorney &c. have these words the day last as above the 24th day of February 1792.