which would give to each the sum of $192.50. If year from the year 1822 to the year 1831. inclusive making ten years, which gives the sum charged in the schedule. The Court to charge no interest as the understanding was that the whole proceeds of the estate should remain with the intestate so long as they continued to keep it together. The widow would also see to it that something like one half of the amount of the intestate's estate, as it appeared. Peter Edwards furnished the stock of all kind and provisions for the first year which were to be accounted for, but the Court is not bound.
