

in such case directed my said negro to be given

I furthermore also lend unto my daughter Rebecca Mecom during her natural life on the same conditions I lend her my other property, my loom half my loom harness half my ^{own} ~~loom~~ one cow and calf four Ewes, one sow & Pigs & one Iron Pot of all of which I desire she may take her choice also ten barrels of corn but in case of an infringement of the conditions on which I lend her this property, I then give my loom, harness slays, cow & calf sow & Pigs and Iron Pot to my son Michael

Thirdly, I give unto my son ~~William~~ Cobb one feather bed and furniture and suit of bed sheetens to him & his heirs forever

Fourthly, I give unto my son Michael Cobb my plantations & whereon I now live with all my other lands, except a tract known by the name of Belarks & that I also give him immediately on the death of my daughter Rebecca Mecom or upon her cohabiting with Samuel Mecom or living with him or suffering him to live with her or. I also give him my store and apparatus belonging thereto & all my cider casks & barrels and one feather bed & furniture of which he is now possessor, on conditions that he does pay to Capt. Charles Biggs the sum of Ninety pounds & Int. & maintain my four youngest sons, namely Jeremiah Benjamin Thomas & George until they arrive at the age of ~~fifty~~ years & in the interim to give them an education suitable to the trades they may be bound to at that age of which trade I wish them to choose; and have them taught to read & to write and as far in Arithmetic as the Rule of three or further if necessary to him & his heirs forever

Fifthly,

I lend unto my daughter Elizabeth Wootten my negro woman named Anaky my negro boys Ned & Jeffery one feather bed & furniture, one large chest, one flax hackle half my loom harness and slays, my Grey Mare & a side saddle & bridle during her natural life & immediately on her death