The "Act for dividing the County of Isle of Wight into two distinct Counties and for other purposes therein mentioned" does not appear in Hening (1748, Vols. 5 and 6) either by title or in full text; but reference below, will show the full text of this Act, a copy of which was recently secured by the Library from the Public Record Office in London, for use in this connection. It will be noted that Southampton County, -although authorized by an Act passed in 1748 -came into actual existence in 1749 the former date being the genearl and more popular interpretation of the actual existence of this county.
